

L.E. Froom

to

C.B. Clark

Aug. 16, 1966.

[excerpt]

Brother Clark, how is it that men were confused over the deity of Christ, over the Trinity, over the personality of the Holy Spirit, over the Atonement and its right relation to the cross? Of course, back in those days there was not the fullness of writing such we have access to today, but even in the twentieth century we had a group of diehards who denied the eternal pre-existence and deity of Christ."

[end of excerpt]