

R. A. Anderson

to

L. E. Froom

August 10, 1961.

[excerpt]

It is most unfortunate that we can bring into our University setup men who do not have very clear convictions concerning such vital doctrines as the Trinity. I suppose we will have to expect that, for we are not only making history, we are repeating history. The Reformation was killed in the schools, and this great message can suffer a tremendous setback by that kind of teaching.

[end excerpt]